Internationally Renowned Choreographer Anne Teresa De Keersmaeker Brings North American Premiere of The Six Brandenburg Concertos To Park Avenue Armory’s Drill Hall, Starring Her Award-Winning Company, Rosas

J.S. Bach’s Score is Performed Live by B’Rock Orchestra In the Company’s North American Debut

October 1 – 7, 2018

New York, NY – July 24, 2018 – This October, internationally acclaimed Belgian choreographer Anne Teresa De Keersmaeker and her company Rosas bring the North American premiere of The Six Brandenburg Concertos to the Wade Thompson Drill Hall at Park Avenue Armory. Choreographed by De Keersmaeker, The Six Brandenburg Concertos is an evening-length dance work for 16 Rosas company members that explores the transcendental dimension found in the Brandenburg Concertos, one of J.S. Bach’s most iconic masterpieces. In the Armory production, De Keersmaeker and her company are joined by the baroque ensemble B’Rock—making its North American debut—who play the concertos live under the baton of violinist Amandine Beyer. The production marks the continuation of De Keersmaeker’s decades-long examination of the relationship between dance and music and her persistent fascination with Bach’s work, which first captivated her during her early years. of choreographing. The production also builds on the Armory’s rich lineage of exploring Bach’s enduring legacy.

Recognized as radically changing modern dance in Belgium, De Keersmaeker began choreographing in 1980 and founded her company, Rosas, three years later. Her choreography blends mathematics, patterns, and social structures to illuminate the intrinsic link between dance and music. Since its founding, Rosas has championed interdisciplinary experimentation, integrating theatrics, texts, live music, and film into their productions.

“We are honored to bring Anne Teresa De Keersmaeker to the Armory to fill our Drill Hall with the poetic magic of her choreography,” said Rebecca Robertson, President and Executive Producer of Park Avenue Armory. “The Six Brandenburg Concertos captures precisely the type of interdisciplinary work that we’re committed to supporting, and we’re excited to be a partner in such a dynamic, cross-genre creation.”

“The specificity and complexity in Anne Teresa’s work is alluring. Her use of the Brandenburg Concertos is emblematic of her artistic style, as it illuminates and deepens the performative tension in modern dance between fundamentals and ornamentation, between the cerebral and the physical,” said Pierre Audi, Artistic Director of Park Avenue Armory. “She is the quintessential embodiment of modern dance and expresses it as a master through the appearance of disorder that, in reality, is entrenched in heavy technique, and through her playful articulation of rhythm and reliance on mathematics.”

This production continues the Armory’s history of exploring Bach’s legacy through unique, interdisciplinary programming such as St. Matthew Passion (Peter Sellars, Berliner Philharmoniker, Sir Simon Rattle in 2014) and the Goldberg Variations (Igor Levit and Marina Abramović in 2015). In the hands of one of the most prominent artists in modern dance today, and in dialogue with the Armory’s vast Drill Hall, The Six Brandenburg Concertos will illuminate Bach’s classic composition in an entirely new way.

As part of the Armory’s Artist Talk Series, the performance on October 4 will be preceded by a separately ticketed conversation between Anne Teresa de Keersmaeker and Amandine Beyer. The conversation series seeks to encourage active discussion on the creative process and development of this landmark work.

The Brandenburg Concertos is part of Park Avenue Armory’s 2018 season, which concludes with the North American presentation of William Kentridge’s The Head and the Load (December 4-15), an Armory commission that will activate the full expanse of the Wade Thompson Drill Hall with a processional musical theater performance that examines the stories of more than two million Africans that served in the First World War.

ABOUT ANNE TERESA DE KEERSMAEKER
In 1980, after studying dance at Mudra School in Brussels and Tisch School of the Arts in New York, Anne Teresa De Keersmaeker (b. 1960) created Asch, her first choreographic work. breakthrough pieces, her choreography has been grounded in a rigorous and prolific exploration of the relationship between dance and music. She has created with Rosas a wide-ranging body of work engaging the musical structures and scores of several periods, from early music to contemporary and popular idioms. Her choreographic practice also draws formal principles from geometry, numerical patterns, the natural world, and social structures to offer a unique perspective on the body’s articulation in space and time. In 1995 De Keersmaeker established the school P.A.R.T.S. (Performing Arts Research and Training Studios) in Brussels in association with De Munt/La Monnaie.

ABOUT PARK AVENUE ARMORY
Part palace, part industrial shed, Park Avenue Armory fills a critical void in the cultural ecology of New York by enabling artists to create, students to explore, and audiences to experience, unconventional work that cannot be mounted in traditional performance halls and museums. With its soaring 55,000-square-foot Wade Thompson Drill Hall—reminiscent of 19th-century European train stations—and an array of exuberant period rooms, the Armory offers a platform for creativity across all art forms. Together, these and other spaces within the historic building utilized for arts programming comprise the Thompson Arts Center, named in recognition of the Thompson family’s ongoing support of the institution.

Since its first production in September 2007, the Armory has organized and commissioned immersive performances, installations, and cross-disciplinary collaborations in its vast drill hall that defy traditional categorization and challenge artists to push the boundaries of their practice. In its historic period rooms, the Armory presents small-scale performances and programs, including its acclaimed Recital Series, which showcases musical talent from across the globe within the intimate salon setting of the Board of Officers Room; and the new Artists Studio series in the newly restored Veterans Room, which features innovative artists and artistic pairings that harken back to the imaginative collaboration and improvisation of the original group of designers who conceived the space. The Armory also offers robust arts education programs at no cost to underserved New York City public school students, engaging them with the institution’s artistic programming and the building’s history and architecture.

Programmatic highlights from the Armory’s first 10 years include Bernd Alois Zimmermann’s harrowing Die Soldaten, in which the audience moved “through the music”; the event of a thread, a site-specific installation by Ann Hamilton; the final performances of the Merce Cunningham Dance Company across three separate stages; If’S by Paul McCarthy, a monumental installation of fantasy, excess, and dystopia; an immersive Macbeth set in a Scottish heath and henge by Rob Ashford and Kenneth Branagh; a profound and radically inclusive staging of Bach’s St. Matthew Passion staged by Peter Sellars and performed by Sir Simon Rattle and the Berliner Philharmoniker; Louis Andriessen’s De Materie in a highly imaginative staging by director Heiner Goebbels that included floating zeppelins and a flock of 100 sheep; Circle Map, two evenings of immersive spatial works by internationally acclaimed composer Kaija Saariaho performed by the New York Philharmonic with mise-en-espace by Armory Artistic Director Pierre Audi; and Taryn Simon’s An Occupation of Loss, a monumental work with 30 professional mourners from around the world that blended sculpture, sound, architecture, and performance in an exploration of the boundaries of grief between living and dead, past and present, performer and viewer; Julian Rosefeldt’s Manifesto, a multi-channel cinematic installation featuring Cate Blanchett; eight-time Drama Desk-nominated play The Hairy Ape, directed by Richard Jones and starring Bobby Cannavale; Hansel & Gretel, a new commission by Jacques Herzog, Pierre de Meuron, and Ai Weiwei that transformed and activated the Drill Hall to explore the meaning of publicly shared space in the era of surveillance; and Simon Stone’s Obie-award-winning production of Yerma starring Billie Piper in her North American debut.

Concurrent with its artistic program, the Armory has undertaken an ongoing $215-million revitalization of its historic building, designed by architects Herzog & de Meuron. www.armoryonpark.org.
