Park Avenue Armory to Present Tyshawn Sorey’s

Monochromatic Light (Afterlife)

New Commission, Reimagined in a Staging for the Wade Thompson Drill Hall by Peter Sellars with Immersive Scenic Works by Julie Mehretu and Choreography by Reggie (Regg Roc) Gray, Builds on Morton Feldman’s 1971 Tribute to Houston’s Rothko Chapel

September 27 – October 8, 2022

New York, NY – June 6, 2022 – This fall, Park Avenue Armory presents Monochromatic Light (Afterlife), a new musical composition by genre-defying musician and composer Tyshawn Sorey, co-commissioned in Celebration of the 50th Anniversary of Rothko Chapel. Monochromatic Light (Afterlife) is Sorey’s homage to both the Chapel and composer Morton Feldman, whom Sorey cites as a major influence on his compositional style and whose 1971 masterpiece was written for the dedication of the Chapel. Visionary director Peter Sellars returns to the Armory to stage the work for the magnitude of the Wade Thompson Drill Hall, placing Sorey’s composition in dialogue with new and preexisting works by visual artist Julie Mehretu and choreography by Reggie (Regg Roc) Gray, immersing audiences in sound, color, and movement. Monochromatic Light (Afterlife) will be performed at the Armory from September 27 to October 8, 2022.

“With the presentation of Monochromatic Light (Afterlife), the Armory has provided the space for collaboration between three powerhouse figures to create a unique experience that both honors Feldman’s original composition and expands upon it within the context of the Drill Hall to create a dynamic, genre-defying performance experience,” said Pierre Audi, the Armory’s Marina Kellen French Artistic Director. “Peter Sellars’ reimagined staging of Sorey’s masterpiece provides a serene, reflective environment in which audiences can consider the thematic richness and emotional power of the work.”

“Monochromatic Light (Afterlife) reflects an institutional commitment to fostering artistic community and providing a platform for artists to elevate, expand, and collaborate in their practices,” said Rebecca Robertson, the Armory’s Founding President and Executive Producer. “We are thrilled to welcome back Tyshawn Sorey, Peter Sellars, and Reggie Gray to the Armory, and to bring Julie Mehretu’s powerful, multi-layered work into the space.”

Monochromatic Light (Afterlife) commemorates 50 years since the dedication of Rothko Chapel, a unique non-denominational chapel founded by John and Dominique de Menil that features 14 dark-hued canvases created for the space by the great 20th-century painter Mark Rothko. For the dedication, composer Morton Feldman presented a score he had written in honor of Rothko, who committed suicide before the Chapel’s opening. Sorey’s composition is deeply inspired by Feldman’s work, sharing the instrumentation of his original score (percussion, viola, celesta, choir) with the addition of piano and swapping the soprano soloist for a bass-baritone, and provides the listener with the feeling of being enveloped in sound in much the same way that Rothko’s paintings engage visitors in the Chapel, revealing ever changing shades of color and texture.
In the Drill Hall, Monochromatic Light (Afterlife) will feature a ritualized staging by Peter Sellars, who returns to the Armory following his direction of the celebrated productions of St. Matthew Passion in 2014, FLEXN in 2015, and FLEXN Evolution in 2017. Audiences will experience the work in a ceremonial chamber immersed in large-scale canvases by renowned artist Julie Mehretu. Flex pioneer Reggie (Regg Roc) Gray is choreographing the production, accenting Sorey’s composition with the sharp, electrifying movement style that characterized the FLEXN performances, which he co-directed with Sellars. Sorey’s score will be performed by violist Kim Kashkashian, Sarah Rothenberg on piano and celesta, percussionist Steven Schick, singer Davóne Tines, and The Choir of Trinity Wall Street. Monochromatic Light (Afterlife) represents a continuation of Sorey’s relationship with the Armory; the MacArthur “Genius” performed in an Artists Studio program in the Armory’s Veterans Room in 2016.

“It is an honor for me to have been asked to create a work commemorating the 50th anniversary of the Rothko Chapel, and to now give the work new life at the Park Avenue Armory,” said Tyshawn Sorey. “The 14 black paintings in the Chapel are works of art that strongly resonate with me. When asked to write this piece, I made the conscious decision to not compose a single note of music until I experienced the visual and spiritual transformation of these paintings for myself inside the Chapel, where I’ve spent several hours during different times of each day I went. This piece reflects these experiences as well as the influence of both Rothko’s artistic output and that of Morton Feldman, one of my biggest musical inspirations. As with all my works, my hope for this composition is for audiences to have an active, dynamic experience with it, not simply just to listen, which the nontraditional space of the Armory’s Drill Hall helps to realize.”

Added Peter Sellars, “Tyshawn Sorey has created a spare, intimate, enveloping world of sound calling forth the piercing memories, unfinished and unburied histories, yearning, and resolve that live inside every step forward and each moment of stillness; Julie Mehretu’s paintings frame, focus, color, and intensify a thirst for justice and spiritual renewal that moves across layers of generations and geographies; Regg Roc Gray and the courageous movers of FLEXN wear the grief, the loss, the endurance, the grace, and the unbroken lifeforce itself in every bone and sinew as they bone break, glide, pause, and get low. It is a privilege for me to enter and share the charged, contemplative, cleansing space opened, activated, and sustained by these artists. For these evenings, the Park Avenue Armory will become a communal site of remembrance and deep introspection.”

Monochromatic Light is part of Park Avenue Armory’s full 2022 season. Additional upcoming Drill Hall programming includes the debut of an Armory-commissioned immersive film installation, Euphoria (November 29-January 8, 2023), by German video and film artist Julian Rosefeldt that takes aim at the destructive potential of capital, money, greed, and consumption, featuring original music performed on film by an ensemble of jazz drummers and singers from the Brooklyn Youth Chorus.

ABOUT JULIE MEHRETU

In exploring palimpsests of history, from geological time to a modern-day phenomenology of the social, Julie Mehretu’s paintings, drawings, and prints engage us in a dynamic visual articulation of contemporary experience, a depiction of social behavior and the psychogeography of space. Mehretu’s work is informed by a multitude of sources including politics, literature, and music. Her most recent paintings have incorporated images from broadcast media which depict conflict, injustice, and social unrest. These graphic images act as intellectual and compositional points of departure; ultimately occluded on the canvas, they remain as a phantom presence in the highly abstracted gestural completed works. Mehretu’s practice in painting, drawing, and printmaking equally assert the role of art to provoke thought and reflection, and express the contemporary condition of the individual and society.

Born in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia in 1970, she lives and works in New York City and Berlin. She received a Master of Fine Arts with honors from The Rhode Island School of Design in 1997, a bachelor's from Kalamazoo College in 1992, and studied at University Cheikh Anta Diop in Dakar, Senegal. Mehretu is a recipient of many awards, including the MacArthur Award (2005), the Berlin Prize: Gunta S. Mundheim Fellowship at the American Academy in Berlin, Germany (2007), and in 2015 she was awarded the U.S. Department of State Medal of Arts Award. An important mid-career survey of Mehretu's work opened in 2019 at Los Angeles Museum of Contemporary Art, California, touring to the High Museum of Art, Georgia (2020), The Whitney Museum of American Art, New York (2021) and Walker Art Center, Minnesota (2021-22). Mehretu is a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, American Academy of Arts and Letters, and the American Academy of Design. Her global representative is Marian Goodman Gallery.

ABOUT REGGIE (REGG ROC) GRAY

The American dancer and choreographer Reggie (Regg Roc) Gray was born and raised in Brooklyn, New York. Gray is the pioneer of the Flexn dance genre, and recently choreographed his largest productions FLEXN (2015) and FLEXN EVOLUTION (2017) at the Park Avenue Armory, which went on tour to the Brisbane Festival, the Festival de Marseille, the Napoli Teatro Festival, colleges like Princeton University and Dartmouth University; as well as the Jacob’s Pillow Dance Festival.
At the age of three, he became fascinated by Michael Jackson, and as a teenager, he turned to the hyperexpressive styles of dance that originated in the Jamaican street culture of Brooklyn, such as bruk up and dancehall. He was one of the innovators of a new hybrid dance form, Flexn: a combination of various styles from the local scene, such as bone breaking, gliding, get-low, connecting, hat tricks, punchlines, and pauz' in, an animated and cinematic flex style he revolutionized. The style was named after the regional TV program Flex N Brooklyn, where local dance groups showcased their latest moves.

Gray has won several top dance titles, danced for television shows, and reality competitions—he flaunted his innovative moves on the third season of America's Best Dance Crew—and in music videos for Wayne Wonder, Sean Paul, Nicki Minaj, and other artists. He has travelled all over the world with his award-winning dance crew RingMasters, and in 2011 he founded a new dance company, named The D.R.E.A.M. RING (Dance Rules Everything Around Me) that strives to ignite social change. In 2015, together with his crew, he provided a choreographic contribution to Public Works; The Odyssey at New York's Public Theater and serves as an artist in residence at National Sawdust where he has orchestrated a series of performances that include the Flexn dance styles and FDM (Flex Dance Music) with live instrumentation.

At the start of the pandemic, Gray was touring nationally with his latest work Flex Ave. commissioned by CAMI music and The Dream Ring Inc. Gray spends his time choreographing productions that speak to social justice topics (such as police brutality and mass incarceration), organizing showcase battles and performances for the street dance community, and developing his upcoming dance production and documentary "Infinite.” Gray looks forward to preserving the integrity of this street dance style, culture, and community as it gains popularity around the world and hopes for Flexn to gain respect and its own identity within dance communities.

ABOUT PARK AVENUE ARMORY
Part palace, part industrial shed, Park Avenue Armory supports unconventional works in the performing and visual arts that cannot be fully realized in a traditional proscenium theater, concert hall, or white wall gallery. With its soaring 55,000-square-foot Wade Thompson Drill Hall—reminiscent of 19th-century European train stations—and an array of exuberant period rooms, the Armory provides a platform for artists to push the boundaries of their practice, collaborate across disciplines, and create new work in dialogue with the historic building. Across its grand and intimate spaces, the Armory enables a diverse range of artists to create, students to explore, and audiences to experience epic, adventurous, relevant work that cannot be done elsewhere in New York.

The Armory both commissions and presents performances and installations in the grand Drill Hall and offers more intimate programming through its acclaimed Recital Series, which showcases musical talent from across the globe within the salon setting of the Board of Officers Room; its Artists Studio series curated by Jason Moran in the restored Veterans Room; Making Space at the Armory, a public programming series that brings together a discipline-spanning group of artists and cultural thought-leaders around the important issues of our time; and the Malkin Lecture Series that features presentations by scholars and writers on topics related to Park Avenue Armory and its history. In addition, the Armory also has a year-round Artists-in-Residence program, providing space and support for artists to create new work and expand their practices.

The Armory’s creativity-based arts education programs provides access to the arts to thousands of students from underserved New York City public schools, engaging them with the institution’s artistic programming and outside-the-box creative processes. Through its education initiatives, the Armory provides access to all Drill Hall performances, workshops taught by Master Teaching Artists, and in-depth residencies that support the schools’ curriculum. Youth Corps, the Armory’s year-round paid internship program, begins in high school and continues into the critical post-high school years, providing interns with mentored employment, job training, and skill development, as well as a network of peers and mentors to support their individual college and career goals.
The Armory is undergoing a multi-phase renovation and restoration of its historic building led by architects Herzog & de Meuron, with Platt Byard Dovell White as Executive Architects.
